Transport layer security (TLS)

Return to Glossary

Transport layer security (TLS) is a protocol that provides communication security between client/server applications that communicate with each other over the Internet. It enables privacy, integrity and protection for the data that's transmitted between different nodes on the Internet. TLS is a successor to the Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol.

See: RFC2818 - HTTP Over TLS (HTTPS)

Source: Transport layer security (TLS)

From:
https://www.omgwiki.org/dido/ - DIDO Wiki

Permanent link:
https://www.omgwiki.org/dido/doku.php?id=dido:public:ra:xapend:xapend.a_glossary:t:tls&rev=1605550806

Last update: 2020/11/16 13:20